Topher Field Releases Powerful Documentary 'Battleground Melbourne'

In 2021 Melbourne, Australia was given the new title of "World's Most Locked Down City" after being named the "World's Most Liveable City" for seven years in a row.

After much anticipation, Libertarian Political Commentator, Film Maker, and Human Rights activist Topher Field announces the release of his documentary 'Battleground Melbourne'.

Melbourne, VIC, January 13 2022 - Battleground Melbourne, a documentary showing the fall of the world's most liveable city through the eyes of those who risked everything to save it, has been announced to release on January 13, 2022. Due to ongoing COVID-19 concerns this film is being released online and free to watch via YouTube.

Over the last 22 months the world has seen violent confrontations and government oppression in Melbourne, Australia, unlike anything seen there before. Battleground Melbourne seeks to tell the story of human rights activists, protest organisers, business owners, workers, and ordinary everyday people who have taken extraordinary risks in the fight for freedom.

The documentary was produced and directed by Topher Field, a leading Australian libertarian political commentator, human rights activist, documentary filmmaker, and winner of the 'Libertarian Activist of the Year' award.

"The fight for freedom on the streets of Melbourne is not over, but the people of Melbourne are coming together like never before and rising in numbers never seen before, and the lessons learned on the streets of the most locked-down city on earth must be taught to the world as soon as possible so they can learn from us and avoid our fate", Director and Producer Topher Field states.

Battleground Melbourne was produced and directed by Topher Field.
